

The Salad Tray has been evaluated and we have had to make a major change. It will no longer be offered in a complete tray form.

The change is needed to meet the new guidelines and follow the "offer vs. serve" pattern, which requires the children to take three of the five components that make up the Class A Tray. Handing a child a completed tray does not follow the true offer vs. serve format allowing the children the option to refuse an item.

Starting November 12 children can still order a chef salad alternate with lettuce and veggies in a bowl and a protein or grain item replacing the main dish and vegetable from the Class A lunch tray. The children taking the salad choice will then be allowed to pick up the other food offerings, such as fruit from the line. The bowl will be equal to two components plus milk making three meeting the federal standards for a reimbursable school lunch.
